

All you need to know about the latest in lighting with the expert

Jill Entwistle

Editor, writer and author, Jill Entwistle is the executive editor of Lighting (Illumination in Architecture) and the author of three books on lighting, including Detail in Contemporary Lighting Design (Laurence King)

TECH SPEC

This image Stop is the latest floor lamp from Davide Groppi

DAVIDE GROPPI↳ Stop / Davide Groppi

Groppi is all about minimalism but he's also a very graphic designer. He has said that in another life he might have been a mathematician, an ambition manqué evident in the pure lines and geometric precision of many of his designs. Stop is the self-explanatory name of his latest floor lamp, a simple round base in matt black painted steel, a slim stem in polished chromed brass, and a full point of a head in Gravity Black matt-black painted steel. The disc-shaped head is adjustable.

RIGHT AND BELOW: DAVIDE GROPPI SRL

↑ Ribbon / Maurici Ginés

The desk or table lamp Ribbon by Davide Groppi is a doodle in the air or, as designer Maurici Ginés has it, 'the ribbon is a symbol of union and continuity'. The base is black marble, the arms in matt-black painted aluminium, connected by a black silicone pipe. A particularly strong joint allows the lamp to be positioned along the vertical axis. The light can also be adjusted around the base.

Simply touching the sensor at the end of the upper arm will switch the light on and off and adjust the brightness.

davidegroppi.com