1. Simbiosi Davide Groppi

On show: Light+Building

Simbiosi rethinks the chandelier, as a restructured collection of metal pendants that can be assembled according to the aesthetic taste of the user. Featured at Light+Building, the thin red wire that connects the light sources relates each part to one another, which serves as the principle component of the project.

4. Halo Manooi

On show: Light+Building

Halo is the new suspended chandelier from Manooi's collection launched at Light+Building and designed by János Héder. Halo combines modern, high-quality LED as a light source, directed upwards along the lamp's outside face with Swarovski crystal trimmings. The lamp hangs from the ceiling from a galvanised Bowden cable.

2. Supernova Lasvit

On show: Downtown Design Dubai

Launched at EuroLuce 2015 and later shown at Downtown Dubai, the Supernova is an interactive glass kinetic sculpture. It introduces the future into the present, magically transforming itself in both time and space. Composed of clear glass with linear texture it creates fascinating light patterns through various angles.

5. Bibendum Martin Huxford

On show: Maison et Objet

A cool fusion of late Deco and Modernist themes inspires this curvaceous chandelier launched at Maison et Objet. The repeated pattern of tightly packed curved shades, held between contrasting square profile circular frames of gold, creates a harmonious centrepiece. Bibendum is available in three sizes.

3. Provence Elstead Lighting

On show: Light+Building

The Provence chandelier launched at Light+Building is a flexible six light chandelier that has adjustable knuckle joints to project long and wide over a table or contract back to a deeper more compact chandelier. Available in polished nickel finish, Provence can also be customised in old bronze, aged brass or polished copper.
